

As a flight attendant I am concerned about the usage of cell phones onboard aircraft. I am concerned from a safety standpoint first of all and then the noise consideration of others is my second concern.

As we all know the traveling public is not exclusive of rudeness while using their phones...the close quarters will just be the last straw for some and I see many problems with this being allowed onboard. There is already enough air-rage these days....this will just be the one more thing that will set off a some passengers, making our job even more difficult.
